Motion for De Novo Review of Temporary Restraining
 Order or Injunction

Case No. _____

This motion must be filed with the court within 30 days after the circuit court commissioner issued a determination on the temporary restraining order or injunction. The case was decided by a circuit court commissioner on [Date] _____.

1. I am the  petitioner  respondent.
2. The court commissioner made a determination on  Temporary Restraining Order  Injunction.
3. The court commissioner  GRANTED  DENIED the Temporary Restraining Order/Injunction.
4. The Temporary Restraining Order or Injunction was the following type of action:
  - Domestic Abuse
  - Child Abuse
  - Individual at Risk
  - Harassment

I request de novo review by a circuit court judge.

If the judge holds a de novo review, the circuit court judge conducts a new hearing. The circuit court judge does not consider the record before the commissioner, but conducts the hearing as if the earlier hearing before the circuit court commissioner never occurred. This means that any evidence presented to the circuit court commissioner must be presented again, and any witnesses who testified must testify again, in order for the judge to consider the evidence or witness testimony.

The clerk of circuit court will only provide a copy of a motion for de novo review of an injunction determination and notice of any scheduled hearing date to the parties.
