It's important that our courts are beyond reproach and that judges aren't deciding cases involving their campaign contributors.

But that's not what the rules say in Wisconsin today. In fact, the conservative majority on our State Supreme Court adopted rules, literally written by the same special interests that spent big money to get them elected, that allow them to participate in cases even if the parties involved contributed to their campaigns.

The rules need to change.

Court rules ought to prevent even so much as the appearance of corruption that special interests get special treatment. Reform the rules on judicial recusal. . .NOW!
